

Protective Orders

What is a protective order?

A Protective Order:

- Orders a person not to commit any more family violence.
- Orders a person not to come within a certain distance of places where the victim frequents, like where the victim lives, works, or goes to school.
- Limits communication with the victim.
- Prevents a person from harassing, annoying, alarming, abusing, tormenting, or embarrassing the victim or any member of the victim's family or household.
- If you are living together, requires the perpetrator to move out.

Who can get a protective order?

The person who committed the violence against the victim must be at least one of the following:

- Related to the victim by blood or marriage
- Currently living with the victim or must have lived with them at some time
- Someone with whom the victim has had a child
- Someone the victim has or had a relationship of a romantic or intimate nature
- Someone that sexually assaulted the victim
- Someone of a third party interest whom because of the victim's marriage to or dating relationship with an individual whom the actor is or has been in a dating relationship or marriage.

What has to be proven in court to get a protective order?

In court, you must prove two things:

1. Family violence has occurred and that
2. Family violence is likely to occur in the future

If only one of these can be proven, then the judge will not grant a protective order.

An isolated act is not enough. A good way to show that family violence is likely to occur in the future is with any threats of harm or acts of violence which occurred in the past to show a pattern of family violence.

What is family violence?

Family violence or dating violence is an act intended to result in physical harm, bodily injury, sexual assault, or a threat that places you in fear of imminent physical harm.

What will a protective order not do?

A protective order filed through the District Attorney's Office will be for the protection of the family and will not address the following:

- Child Support
- Child Custody
- Transfer of Property
- Visitation
- Counseling

What do I need to do to apply?

- Fill out the application and affidavit completely. The affidavit is all the Judge will review to decide whether to grant a Temporary Ex Parte Protective Order. Make sure to include all incidents you can remember. If you can't remember an exact date, do your best to and give a time frame. If you need assistance filling out the application, please let us know so that we may have someone assist you. You may also contact First Step and they will provide assistance throughout the process.
- Your application and affidavit will be reviewed by an attorney. Please know that our resources are limited, but we will review your application as quickly as possible. It may be necessary to schedule an appointment at a later date for you to meet with an attorney. The attorney may ask questions to clarify your situation and your affidavit.
- Before meeting with the attorney, write down any questions you have so that you can remember to ask them when you meet. If we are unable to accept your application and file on your behalf, we will do our best to provide you resources to assist you.
- You must be able to provide an address where the Respondent can be served. The Respondent must be served with the paperwork. If they cannot be personally served, then the Protective Order will not be granted. This may take time and is out of our control.
- Once your application is accepted, we will prepare the court documents. When those are ready, we will have you review them.
- Bring your driver's license or photo ID with you.

Issues to be aware of:

- If you are on probation, parole, or have a pending criminal case, we cannot file a protective order on your behalf as this creates a conflict of interest.
- If you are represented by a private attorney in a divorce, CPS, child custody case, we will not be able to represent you. Your attorney will need to file a protective order in that case.

What happens if my application is accepted?

- After you review and sign the pleadings, the documents will be filed with the District Clerk who will then assign the case to a court. The Judge will then review the documents and decide whether to grant a Temporary Ex Parte order until the hearing on the Protective Order.
- If you are requesting an order to remove the respondent from the home, you will appear before a judge at a brief hearing.

- The Judge will set the case for a hearing to be held in about two weeks. The Sheriff's Office will attempt to serve the respondent the paperwork.
- If the respondent is not able to be served at least three days prior to the hearing, then the hearing will be rescheduled. The court may have other things on its schedule that will preempt the hearing as well. This is all out of our control. However, stay in contact with our office and we will do our best to keep you informed.

What happens at the hearing?

- You will be accompanied in court by an assistant district attorney. You will be called to the stand to testify.
- The respondent may be represented by an attorney. The respondent or their attorney will be able to ask you questions.
- You may bring witnesses on your behalf who have personal knowledge of acts the respondent has committed against you. It is your responsibility to make sure your witnesses are present. Please let the assistant district attorney handling your case know about the witnesses beforehand.
- If you have pictures, text messages, or other evidence, please let the assistant district attorney know so that they may review the evidence and plan for how to introduce the evidence in court.
- At the end of the hearing, the judge will decide whether to grant a protective order. The judge may grant an order for up to two years. In some cases, the order may be extended beyond two years. Please contact our office about how an order may be extended.

What happens if the judge grants the protective order?

- The judge will sign a written order. We will provide you with a copy of the order. You can get additional copies from the District Clerk's office.
- If you change your address while the order is in effect, contact the District Clerk's office so they can update your information.
- Keep a copy of your order with you at all times. Provide copies to your employer, landlord, close family members, and others you think need to be informed.
- The police department will be informed of the protective order.
- If you believe the respondent is violating the order, you must call the police. The police will investigate and can arrest the respondent if they believe a violation has occurred.

Can I drop a protective order?

- You will be required to attend the final hearing. It will be your responsibility to inform the judge of why you want to dismiss the protective order.
- Once a Protective Order is granted, our office will not represent you in any proceeding to vacate a protective order.
